Dear Parents and Caregivers

Today your child is bringing home their school report. Teachers have spent a long time assessing the children and analysing data to determine the level your child is working at.

In New Zealand, our curriculum is designed so that children are taught at the ability level they are working at. We have very high expectations of achievement and the reports coming home today will tell you if your child is working at that expected level.

We have thought long and hard about class placements for next year, using the following criteria in priority order:

- Your child's learning needs and strengths.
- Your child's maturity level and behaviour patterns.
- Friendships that have existed this year.

I am pleased to announce the following structure for 2020:
